1. On 6 August 1953, another estimated 2,600 men arrived in Torgelow by rail from the Berlin area and Ruegen Island in addition to the 1,000 soldiers with red collar patches who had marched to the Droegerheide camp. The troops which arrived on 6 August were quartered in the Karpin-Altwarb area and at Installation II, Stallberg.
2. Prior to 24 August, the infantry units which had previously been stationed at Installation VI, Droegerheide, moved to the tent camp. The vacated blocks of the barracks building were re-occupied by tank units whose soldiers wore blue collar patches. AAA units equipped with 37-mm and 85-mm guns and a searchlight battery were observed in the tent camp. tanks, SP guns and armored scout cars near the billeting area of Installation VI, which quartered infantry units. An artillery unit and 85-mm and 37-mm AA guns were observed at Installation II, which had approximately the same size of Installation VI.²

25X1 on 4 September, a convoy of 8 buses occupied by KVP personnel [redacted]
25X1 [redacted] was observed proceeding toward Ferdinandshof.

25X1 [redacted] Comment. The movements reported were within the framework of normal supply and training activities previously observed in this area.
